

Specialized Services

Hardwater Removal- Hard water stains are known by many names – limescale, mineral deposits, mineral buildup, hard water deposits – but the meaning is the same. Hard water stains appear as chalky white residue that results from buildup of excess minerals present in hard water. The removal of these stains can range anywhere from a standard conventional cleaning with a mild chemical solution to a heavier restoration project involving chemicals with more acidic properties. Contrary to popular belief one solution does not solve all your hard water stain problems. Ask a rep from Point B how to get rid of your hard water stain today and what some of the most common causes are! Pricing is determined and quoted on visual inspection of the windows.

New Construction Window Cleaning- As all investments are important, when a home is built and no one has even occupied the home ever you want to make sure that the home reaches its maximum sales potential right out of the gate. As with all specialized window cleaning services not one method is used to remove every smudge, drywall dropping, paint stain or mortar mix leftover. Multiple cleaning methods and tools are required along with a strong knowledge of what to look for in the initial evaluation of the investment, and a proper hand off to the closing table. Working knowledge is essential and works hand in hand with technicians who understand the value of what is at stake. Point B Home Solutions has what it takes to meet you there. Our expanding database of knowledge and is continually growing. If we don't have a solution for you we make it our business to find a solution. A number of factors are taken into consideration for pricing. Please contact Point B for more information.

Storm Windows, Window Coverings, Low-E (Energy Efficient Glass), Sills, Grates Etc.- Point B recognizes that many parts make up the whole. Understanding of all of the parts, their function, how-to, and how-not to enhance their original or repurposed features and complete tasks within the allotted time frame with quality and a with attention detail while upholding their integrity to ultimately increase the life span and overall aesthetic appeal. Care, Custody, and Control isn't just something insurance covers. It is a set of responsibilities that if placed into the wrong hands can be a costly mistake to more than just the insurance company. Point B makes it our goal to continually educate our staff, teams, and technicians on all new technology and processes. This ensures not only that we stay in business, but it will see to it that we will produce expected quality results every time. Some services are included in with any window cleaning service others are more specialized and may cost an additional fee.

Call Point B Home Solutions LLC for specific pricing for any specialized service requests!
(352)254-5066